Description

Pair of candelabras with three candle arms.

Ormolu and patinated bronze.

Empire period, early 19th century.

H. 40 - l. 23,5 cm

These candelabras represent a woman holding two candle arms in the shape of cornucopias decorated with plant friezes. Their long dress twirling on their bare feet indicates that they are dancing and gives a beautiful vivacity to the model. Their heads, with hair pulled up in braids on the top of the skull, support another binnacle decorated with a laurel frieze.

The pedestal has gilded bronze applications representing another dancer as well as the thyrsos, a stick topped with a pine cone around which ivy
