Description

Dressing table in solid walnut, Louis XVI style, with Psyche type mirror, held by two carved uprights. Blocking pivots, in brass cut out of Balls of Pine, make its inclination adjustable. This mirror, sober, benefits from a wood surround with discreet mouldings. This piece of furniture consists of an overhanging top with a mitred frame. Its central part is covered with a fabric with yellow patterns on a red background, in very good condition, but which can, if desired, be easily replaced. This top is protected by a glass with rounded edges, transparent and removable. The belt of this dressing table sees its curved central part. It offers laterally two drawers assembled with Dovetails, with Beech sides and Mahogany backs. Both have chiseled brass pull buttons. The set rests on four tapered and fluted legs, with wooden rings on the ends. Note the presence of discreet white traces on the structure of this property, vestiges of its old painting. But this irregularity undoubtedly brings Charm to this Hairdresser already full of Elegance. We will also appreciate the possibility of Customizing and Reinventing this piece of furniture ad infinitum, simply by changing its upholstery, which we will adapt according to the evolution of our desires or our Decoration. One thing is therefore certain: we will never get tired of this Centenary Hairdresser.
