Work from the beginning of the 20th century, in the style of the 18th century. Louis Damon (1860-1947) became the owner of the store "Au Vase Etrusque" at 20 rue Malesherbes in Paris in 1887 at the age of 27. A great creative, he has a decoration workshop and makes his own models to resell them. In 1889, the Daum Brothers entrusted him with the finishing of Berluze vases with long handles. They work them in his workshop by finely engraving them with a cameo wheel or intaglio of plant ornaments that he draws himself in an Art Nouveau style. It will also distribute a range of
