Description

Portrait of a boy in navy uniform was executed in 1901 by the well-known Austrian female painters Emmi (Emilie) Paungarten (1874 - 1947). She was born in Klagenfurt. Died in Graz. After graduating from university, from 1894 she attended the landscape drawing school in Graz, Austria. In 1902, she continued her studies in Munich in the Union of Women Artists and then in Landenberger. In 1903-05 she worked for a few months in Knirr and Azbe. She then undertook study trips to Venice, Padua and in 1911 to Paris, where she attended the Modern Academy with Othon Friesz and Querin. It was probably around this time or as a result of other student travels that took her to Bulgaria, Romania and Constantinople. She then had her permanent residence in Graz, where she also worked as a
