Description

Exceptional pair of windows with very thick wrought iron frame and iron opening structure lined with a thick eglomized glass mirror representing a couple of dancers surmounted by a red stage curtain. Each very heavy element measures 104.5 cm HT and 68.5 cm wide ep at the height of wrought iron 10 cm. Flat irons: section 30mmx 6 mm. The external structure has holes to be able to screw it directly into the stone wall frame. The interior structure does not allow light to pass because the églomisés glasses that can be replaced are opaque. From family memory, this pair of windows was placed in a theater on each side of the cash register and allowed the owner to see the public without being seen when they were open. The set constitutes a work in its own right that can simply be hung on
