Description

Charming little writing table in the Louis XIV style, in solid walnut. Its tray, with beautiful Walnut veining, is surrounded by a molding made up of circular motifs, and a bec-de-corbin. The perimeter of the belt is also carved with scallops. It rests on four turned feet, ending in small patty feet. The base is connected by a partially turned Saint-André cross element, in its center is a piece with spinning top turning. This small writing table has an interesting dimension, it will elegantly dress your entrance as a side table for example.

Period: Late 19th century
