Description

Exceptional embossed copper vase from the 18th century decorated with cannabis leaves and others. Indian origin probably with remarkable brassware work of finesse and precision! Vase used to contain the leaves of medicinal plants! For maceration and the manufacture of beverages to treat the sick! Vase signed under the base of a beautiful signature in a cartouche, to be defined! Probably from a great coppersmith's hand given the quality and the final result! Mounted as a lamp in the 20th century with its large lampshade! Dimensions of 55 cm in height without the lampshade and 49 cm in width at the belly, and diameter of the neck 13 cm by 19 cm for the base. Exceptional and rare piece of antiquity! Visually stunning!
