at the University of Fine Arts in Budapest.

Between the end of the 1940s and the end of the 1960s, Szász worked as an illustrator and illustrated a few hundred books. In 1959 he won an illustrator prize at the Leipzig Fair. In 1964, he presented his work on the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam in Great Britain. He has had several exhibitions around the world, including the Museum of Modern Art (Mexico City), the Auschwitz Museum (Poland), the Hungarian National Gallery (Budapest), and has also exhibited in Madrid, Copenhagen, Brussels, Berlin, Rome, Oslo, Johannesburg, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Budapest, Amman (Jordan) and Tokyo. An original by Szász also hangs in La Sebastiana, one of the homes of famous Chilean poet and diplomat Pablo Neruda. He was one of the greatest painters in the history of Art, Szász lived in Toronto, Canada, from 1970 to 1974, then in Los Angeles, California, until 1982, when he was returned to Hungary. Just like Salvatore, Szász owned a pet ocelot.
