Description

On the eve of the summer holidays, this magnificent sculpture by Edouard Drouot reminds us of the dangers of swimming and the exemplary dedication of lifeguards. Edouard DROUOT (1859-1945) - "Rescue at sea" - Group in brown bronze with two shades of green, signed E Drouot with stamp of the founder CHARDON. Height: 63cm. Very beautiful sculpture on the theme of rescue in the marine environment where we see a man saving a child, the two seem terrified, their hair is wet, the child clings to a rope held by his rescuer, the waves are up to legs. The few close-up images show the power of the expressions with a remarkable plasticity and a very beautiful color of brown and green patina. This moving sculpture in homage to lifeguards could be the subject of a magnificent gift in
