Description

Drawing in black ink from nature around 1830. France. It represents an outdoor scene with a group of figures in fashionable clothes at the time, around 1830, who are looking towards a place that the amateur painter who represents them does not let us see. It is a sequence in which only three characters, a man in the background accompanied by another elegantly dressed in his top hat, a child and a dog look directly at the viewer. At the bottom right of the drawing appears the legend from nature. For its dating, it is interesting to observe the garment which is linked to a very specific period of the first third of the 19th century.
