Description

This small jewellery box entirely in natural cedar burl veneer is slightly domed on the lid. The latter is lined in its center with a brass diamond on an ebony background, and its softened edges are in rosewood. This box closes on a functional hook hinge and has its key. The interior is finely padded with light blue fabrics showing signs of wear, visible in the photographs, pledges of stories and authenticity. This small Second Empire box will be the perfect setting for storing your jewellery.

Period: Late 19th century.
