

Inkwell Kidney Candle Holder In Rosewood Louis XV Period

950 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : En l'état

Length : 15 cm

Width : 14 cm

Height : 5 cm

Description

An inkwell, a charming utilitarian object from the Louis XV period in rosewood veneer and having the function of a candle holder.

kidney-shaped it is entirely veneered with rosewood (a small lack to report on the top but not very visible). its kidney shape typical of the transition period receives three finely worked brass compartments and two penholders.

the brass receptacles are deep and their edges are finely hemmed.

a handle adorned with an elongated bronze shell allons, thanks to its receptacle, to receive a candle for writing in the evening, the socket allows you to move around in complete safety.

the set rests on three feet decorated with acanthus leaves ending in small clogs.

the proportions are lovely.

Dealer

Antoine Claeys - Maison du XVème
antiquaire généraliste

Mobile : 06 85 53 27 42

24 grande Rue

Nogent l'Artaud 02 310

a lovely portable inkwell candle holder from the Louis XV period.

dimensions: 15 cm long by 14 cm deep with the handle and 5 cm high.

we deliver and ship everywhere in the world,
please contact us for a free quotation.