Description

Charming pair of fixed under glass from the middle of the 18th century, Augsburg school, representing a gallant scene in the spirit of Wateau or Fragonard.

the two gouaches form a counterpart and the scene seems to take place in a park: a young woman accompanied by her servant does not seem to remain indifferent to the charm of a young man passing nearby.

the two gilded wooden frames with serrated decoration are from the beginning of the 20th century. some lack of paint and small alterations due to time.

a charming pendant, decorative and easy to place.
