Description

Pendulum and its trim consisting of two candlesticks and two removable cups on feet. The clock is in the shape of a covered pot topped with an Egyptian cat with a broken ear (this is neither an accident nor a defect). The dial is decorated with twelve enamel cartridges with Roman numerals. Beautiful finely chiselled needles. Under the dial, a porcelain medallion depicts a portrait of a pharaoh wearing his nemes. Beautiful decor using the repertoire of ancient Egypt. The suspension movement bears the AD Mougin stamp for Adolphe Mougin. Movement revised and in good working order, with its key. The stems of the candlesticks are in porcelain decorated with profiles of Egyptian women each wearing a hawk hairstyle. Two removable displays complete this set. In medallion, in the
