south-east where the manufacture of carpets represented an important economic sector and this since the middle of the 19th century. These carpets have shades of pink, red, ocher, many blues, purple and the majority of them bear geometric patterns.

The most common pattern used is composed of a large central field with one or more square medallions, but the one called Sirdjan is more often medallion.

Some decorations represent the skin of an animal stretched before being tanned.

What is typical of Sirdjan and Afshar rugs is that they are relatively wide compared to their length. Sirdjan rugs are also marketed under the name Afshar rugs.

A collector's item above all, this superb rug is a work of art close to modern or even contemporary art which can be put on the wall but remains very solid for everyday use and for large passages.

This rug has been professionally and environmentally cleaned.

Traces of light wear, which gives this type of ethnic rug its authentic character.

The rug is in good condition considering its age and has central pile wear which does not detract from the beauty of this beautiful antique rug.

A beautiful piece due to its construction and the quality of the wools and the design.
