Description

Persian Rug from the Ancient Shiraz region of the Khamseh Nomad Tribes with a length of 155 cm x width 120 cm from the first part of the 19th century Completely symmetrical decoration present in the field of the carpet including in the inverted squares.

These polygons are typical of these regions and of the work of the different ethnic groups that live there.

A bestiary, horses, poultry, snakes are often tied in a profusion of plants, all in a geometric way. Stylized flowers accompany two bustards proudly encamped on each side;

The bustard is one of the emblematic birds of these great plains of Persia, the Caucasus and Central Asia.

the dyes used for dyeing come mainly from plants and minerals. ocher, indigot, madder....

The inspiration for these motifs comes mainly from folklore and local superstitions, but also very often from the frescoes and columns of ancient Persepolis near this sector.

The set is enhanced with a wide border and two braids.

The wool used comes from a mixture of wool from sheep, goats, camels, and you can also find horsehair.

The Khamseh tribe is from the Shiraz sector in the province of Fars in southwestern Iran.

This carpet is in very good condition, collection, it is a real artifact of the popular and tribal culture of these regions.

This rug is sold like all of our rugs with an invoice equivalent to a certificate.

It has been professionally and ecologically cleaned.
