During Capri's Romantic period it was host to several intellectuals:

Rainer Maria Rilke (Prague, Czechia 1875 - Montreux, Switzerland 1926) , a Bohemian-Austrian German-language poet and novelist, was one of its prestigious inhabitants.

Karl Wilhelm Diefenbach also lived in the Villa.
He was a German painter born in Hadamar,
Germany in 1851 and is famously remembered for writing on its walls "hereby lives the body of a dead man". Diefenbach died in Capri in 1913.
His paintings are still on show in Capri's Certosa.
